

KILLED BY TRAIN ON SECOND TRIAL

John Moore, Dutchess County Lawyer, After Being Pulled from in Front of One Threw Himself Before Another.

HEAD WAS STRETCHED
OVER ONE OF THE RAILS.

Waited Until Second Train Was
So Near It Could Not Be Stopped Before Getting in Front of It.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 30.—

The suicide of John Moore, a member of the Dutchess County Bar, in the suburbs of this city to-day was a remarkably deliberate achievement. After being driven from the tracks of the Poughkeepsie and Eastern Railroad by the crew of one train, he waited until another came along, stretched himself out on the track and allowed the locomotive to strike him, dying instantly.

When the first train out of the city to-day was well under way in the sparsely settled boundaries, Moore was discovered sitting on the track. The engineer blew the whistle, but Moore did not move and the train was stopped a few feet from him. The engineer and fireman had to remove him from the track by force. The last they saw of him he was sitting on a fence alongside the right of way.

He remained there until the incoming train, due shortly afterward, came along, and this time he did not give the engineer time to stop. He waited until the locomotive was only a few yards away and then lay down on the track with his head stretched over the rail. When he was struck his skull was fractured and his body was thrown to one side of the road.

Moore left no letters so far as is known to explain his act. He is supposed to have been suffering from temporary insanity.

PATRICK WALSH

IS NOW A HERO

He Effects This Morning a
Thrilling Rescue of the Two Little Daughters of Max Weis on Amsterdam Avenue.

Patrick Walsh is the hero in the neighborhood of his home, at No. 27 Amsterdam avenue, to-day, for his thrilling rescue of the two little daughters of Max Weis when the building at No. 23 burned late last night. Fighting his way through flame and smoke to the top floor of the five-story structure, Walsh took the children in his arms and carried them to safety.

Soon after the firemen came it was said that a nine-year-old girl was still in the building. Policeman Quinn was forced back when he tried to go up the stairs, but he went into the adjoining building and crawled along the coping until he could get into the window of Weis's apartments. The girl had fled to the roof and was out of danger.

There were many narrow escapes before all of the twenty-five tenants of the building escaped, but no serious injuries were reported. The building was almost destroyed.

ANDERSON, MISSING, HIS WIFE AND FAMILY.

A. Anderson, proprietor of the Hell Gate Transfer Company, has been missing for one week. He left his home after a week of quarrelling with his wife and has not since been heard of.

Mrs. Anderson, of No. 1729 Avenue A, said today, although there had been some sharp words between her husband and herself, that will hardly explain his absence. She has searched the hos-

MOTHER DEAD WHEN SON RETURNED

Mrs. Ann Gallagher Accidentally
Turned on a Gas Jet While Cleaning a Stove and Was Asphyxiated.

Mrs. Ann Gallagher, sixty-five years old, was accidentally asphyxiated by illuminating gas in her home at No. 1453 First avenue to-day.

Mrs. Gallagher's body was discovered by her son John, a bartender, when he returned from work about 2 o'clock. From the condition of the room it was apparent that Mrs. Gallagher had been cleaning the stove in the kitchen, and in taking off a small gas stove that rested on the range had accidentally disconnected the tube.

Her son thought she was asleep when he entered the house, and when he found she would not answer his questions summoned an ambulance from the Presbyterian Hospital. Dr. Harvey said Mrs. Gallagher was dead.

The Gallagher family have had a great deal of trouble within the last three months. About two months ago the youngest son, Alfred, was taken seriously ill and went to Bellevue Hospital, where it was said he was incurable. One month later the eldest son, William, died. The father has been dead some years, and John was the sole support of the family.

"Father of Broad Tire Bill" Dead.
TAUNTON, Mass., Oct. 30.—Samuel A. Dean, for more than half a century known as the "Father of the Broad Tire Bill," died here to-day aged ninety-three years. Mr. Dean, who was a member of the Legislature in 1838, introduced the first bill providing that broad tires be used on all heavy vehicles on country roads, and from 1841 until it was finally adopted a few years ago, annually offered a broad tire bill.

MOTHER SAYS GIRL WAS ABDUCTED

Mrs. Levy Declares Daughter Is Less than Sixteen Years Old and Man Who Married Her Is Held for Trial.

Frank Camagna, an Italian, twenty-two years old, of No. 411 East Twelfth street, was held in $1,000 bail by Magistrate O'Brien in the Yorkville Police Court today for trial on a charge of abduction.

Mrs. Lena Levy, of No. 336 East Eighth street, complained that the prisoner had married her daughter Rebecca on Oct. 1 without her consent. The girl is a Hebrew and the young man is a Catholic. They were married in the Church of the Immaculate Conception, on East Fourteenth street, after the girl had been instructed in her husband's religion and baptized. The mother swore in court that her daughter is still under sixteen years of age. The bride produced a Board of Health certificate in which Mrs. Levy swore to her daughter's age. "This complaint is brought because the girl abandoned her faith to become a Christian," declared Lawyer Freudenthal, the prisoner's counsel. "I believe the mother is now telling the truth. She was anxious to have her daughter go to work in the garment district and did not give her daughter's consent," announced the Magistrate.

TRACING ARMENIAN PLOT.

Conflict About Identity of the Men
Arrested in Boston.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—At the headquarters of the Armenian revolutionists at Peckham, a suburb of this city, it is believed that Vahen Krikorian, who was arrested at Boston yesterday upon advice from Scotland Yard charging him with having been implicated in the conspiracy which resulted in the assassination of Sir William Saurin, President of the Armenian Revolutionary society, is identical with the Armenian of that name who, with two others named Shahrman and Aronian, succeeded three months ago and set up a rival society at Clapham, another suburb of London, where the Alfarists are based.

These three men are said to have disappeared in August and it was thought they had gone to Cyprus. Krikorian, who was formerly an Armenian Protestant preacher, is reported to have been hostile to Saurin since the split in the society in 1902.

Other members of the Hinchakist Society identify the man arrested in Boston as Vahen Krikorian. They say he is a well-known member of the Alfarist or physical force faction.

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—Anticipating the arrest of Vahen Krikorian, the Armenian arrested yesterday, a number of Armenians assembled at the Federal Building to-day to attend the proceedings. The arrangement was delayed. Krikorian spent the night at the Charles Street Jail, to which he was taken shortly after his arrest by the United States Deputy Marshal.

SHIP ASHORE, BUT CREW SAVED

The Belle Bartlett Is Driven
On Beach in a Hurricane at Zach's Inlet, L. I., but Life-
Savers Responded.

Grounded and beating her ribs against the bar of Zach's Inlet, Long Island, the schooner Belle Bartlett lies deserted by crew and captain. Early to-day the schooner, on her way to New Bedford, Mass., lost her course in the fog and went ashore.

The Belle Bartlett carried a crew of twelve men and ten passengers. Capt. Zach's Inlet, L. I., but Life-Savers Responded.

At once every effort was made to launch the ship. A fire-saver, a launch was manned and launched. Through a towering surf the launch worked their way to the Belle Bartlett. Passengers and crew, and captain last of all, were taken from the schooner into the boat. They were all cared for at the station.

The stranded schooner was carrying a cargo of goat skins, iron and bones. It is said she was partially insured. Hamilton Merritt, of the Merritt-Chapman Wrecking Company, has gone out to the vessel to see if she can be saved.

and her long trip was about over when the beaching occurred. Flashing distress signals and sending rocket after rocket into the air, it looked for a time as if the Belle Bartlett was not to receive any assistance from shoreward. But the signs of distress were answered at last. The Oak Inlet life-saving station was within range of the disabled schooner and one of the rockets was seen by Beach Patrolman Charles Whaley.

At once every effort was made to launch the ship. A fire-saver, a launch was manned and launched. Through a towering surf the launch worked their way to the Belle Bartlett. ## An Important Announcement About Some Choice French Dress Goods

It has been, many a day since such stirring news as this has been ready for the telling, about fine dress goods.

The American selling agent of a celebrated French manufacturer of dress fabrics wished to close out the surplus stock of high-class novelties on hand, after the season's orders were filled. We made them an offer, which they finally accepted, in order to dispose of the entire quantity in one operation. The collection consists of

Fancy Panné Zibeline Cloths
Fancy Dotted Zibelines
Fancy Striped Zibelines, and Zibeline Striped Chevots

in blues, browns, greens, Oxford grays and garnets. The patterns are of dignified and refined character. The cloths are of the most beautiful quality coming from the famous French looms; and they sell regularly—are today selling in some of the best stores in the country—at $2 to $3.50 a yard. Yet we are able to offer the entire group

At $1.25 a Yard

This brings the most elegant French suitings down to the price of quite ordinary domestic fabrics; and the lot, large as it is, should be sold out quickly.
